The Vendue Hotel in Charleston is easy to talk about because it elicits strong emotions: namely, love at first sight.

Everything at the Vendue is beautiful, thoughtful, intentional. The simple aesthetic pairs things like brick walls with plush, comfy beds decked out in whites and ivory. Exquisite furniture like gigantic wooden headboards crafted with love make each room feel regal while providing that much-needed comfort for weary travelers. Even the lobby itself, with its chandeliers, marble and artwork, gives you the impression of walking into somewhere impossibly glamorous like the palace of Versailles.

It's also been voted the #1 hotel in Charleston in Travel + Leisure's "World's Best Awards 2017," which is no surprise to us whatsoever. Located on the corners of East Bay and Vendue Range in downtown Charleston, the hotel is actually a combination of two hotels – 19 Vendue and 26 Vendue – that sit across the street from one another. It's a short walk away from attractions like the city market or Waterfront Park, the likes of which you can also catch from the hotel rooftop restaurant / bar you can glance down at the city skyline. Rooms are equipped with Egyptian sheets, lots of art, and gorgeous furniture – offering cookies and milk in the evenings, which is quite possibly one of our favorite perks ever. Bonus points to the free bike option that lets you explore the historic French Quarter in all its splendor.
